

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE

The Anchor BCI Bond Fund seeks to achieve an investment medium for investors, with its main objective being the maximum total return by primarily investing in bonds.

INVESTMENT PHILOSOPHY

The investments normally to be included in the portfolio will comprise a combination of assets in liquid form and a combination of gilts and interest-bearing securities, including loan stock, semi-gilts, notes, debentures, debenture bonds, preference shares, money-market instruments, bonds, corporate debt, convertible equities and non-equity securities. The portfolio may, from time to time, invest in listed and unlisted financial instruments. The manager may also include forward currency, interest rate and exchange-rate swap transactions for efficient portfolio management purposes.

CUMULATIVE PERFORMANCE VS. BENCHMARK SINCE INCEPTION

Investment performance is for illustrative purposes only and calculated by taking actual initial fees and ongoing fees into account for amount shown with income reinvested on reinvestment date.

FUND MANAGER COMMENTARY AT 28 FEB 2018

The bond rally that we spoke about last month has accelerated with the benchmark yield running all the way to 7.92% at the low point for the month.

The markets have celebrated the that President Ramaphosa was able to take over this month. Similarly the budget presented by the Finance Minister was met positively by the market. One might also argue that the cabinet shuffle was a step in the right direction. Overall there has been much good news this month.

Parliament has also started the process to approve land expropriation without compensation. Arguably this is a nuclear weapon that in the wrong hands could do much damage to our country and economy. As a result, the market exuberance has faded and there is an air of caution with which we start March.

We continue to expect interest rate cuts this year, penciling in the March meeting for the first cut.

MARKET COMMENTARY

The surprise for the month was probably the VAT hike during the February budget. Perhaps that is a realization that South African individuals are heavily taxed when compared to our emerging market peers. Notwithstanding this, there are structural challenges that remain in our economy, including a bloated and highly paid public sector. Our number of unemployed is greater than the number of unemployed in the USA. We have more people on social grants than we do taxpayers. Overall South Africa has taken some significant steps in the right direction, however, significant and worrying structural problems remain.

We think that Moody's will be aware of this when they review South Africa on the 23rd of March. They will note the positive steps that we have taken. In our view, the most likely outcome is that we have done enough to kick the can down the road. We expect that Moody's will retain the current rating, including the negative outlook and return for a review towards the end of the year. This should be enough to give the bond market a little cheer.

These structural issues that we have discussed should be enough to keep the South African bond yield curve a little steeper than it has been in the past. We see some scope for further flattening, though we think that most of this is done for now.

The VAT hike will have an impact on inflation as well. We now think that South African inflation will push up towards 5.5% in April when the VAT hike takes effect. As a result, we will see some caution with regard interest rates from the Reserve Bank at their March meeting. We still feel (as we have for some time) that South Africa's rates are too high and that a cut is warranted. We acknowledge that there remains a risk of this being pushed out again.

Overall we remain positive on bonds and are looking through the VAT hike to say that core inflation remains low and that bonds are attractive in this environment.
