MARKET COMMENTARY AT 28 FEB 2018

Asset Class Returns

Fear that the Fed might increase rates faster than expected extended the global selloff from January to February. SA Equities ended the month down 2.0% after dropping as much as 6.1% mid-month. The domestic property sector continued to be plagued by negative research reports and plunged 9.9%. This sector is now down almost 20% year-to-date. In contrast, Bonds rallied 3.9% following the election of Cyril Ramaphosa as State President. Cash yielded 0.6% and the Rand strengthened 0.6%.

Drivers of returns:

The equity sectors displayed large variation. Financials appreciated 5.1%, mostly due to the positive sentiment surrounding the South African economy. However, Industrials depreciated 3.5% and Resources were down 4.9%.

The increased volatility in the market was compounded by some company specific news causing some large stock price movements. Fortress B lost 47%, Resilient lost 40% and AngloGold Ashanti was down 18%. Banks dominated the top performing stocks, all appreciating more than 8% with FirstRand leading, up 11%.
